SATURDAY,

NEW YORK will to-day wheel into line ns a Republican state.

To ask the Democrats to scan the election returns from New York is like inviting them to their own funeral.

THE Star discourses very learnedly, with a borrowed faher, this morning, upon the dignified calling and undignified practice of the law, and although its remarks in the abstract are essentially good, the application to the local events of the past week is strained and perverted. It hardly becomes a man who was removed from office and his commission as Attorney General of Arizona and even as a simple Notary Public, revoked because of his evil practices, to prate of honor and dignity of the profession to whose skirts he clings. His teachings in morality are too hypocritical to carry any weight, and even the soundest moral principles are mere words of levity when uttered by such a creature. The very idea of the Star arrogating to itself the faintest conception of truth, honor and integrity is too absurd a proposition for the gravity of the most straight laced church

A RECENT special telegram from Washington, details some of the scenes transpiring at the White House. On the 29th ultime one of the episodes that approach the absurd features of the grotesque sawdust ring took place, and the corridors were crowded with "jedges" and "coloneis" and "majarha" representing the lost cause, who have been hanging around here ever since the mauguration hunting for an office. There had been a pouring rainfall all day, and they looked like a lot of Confederate prisoners captured in a hard shower. These patriots looked upon this as their final chance, and proposed to die in the last ditch. Not half of them got an opportunity to present their claims to the President, and a more disgusted, disheartened, hopeless lot of dead-beats was never seen. A subscription will have to be raised to send them home or Congress must order an addition to the aims-house, as nearly every one is tiat broke. The number of the local office-seekers was considerably angmented by the arrival of several gentlemen from Pennsylvania and other neighboring states, who were started suddenly to Washington by seeing the President's proclamation, and it is supposed there will be others to-morrow. But

THE brute creation has often been grossly libelled by comparing some are told. specimens of depraved humanity to it, but an occasional wretch is found whose counterpart has no equal among beast or reptile. An illustration of the savage instincts lurking in the breasts of mankind, is shown in a telegram from the City of Mexico, detailing a horrible tragedy that transpired in Sabas county, near that city. It seems that Juan Vicente Polavicine was traveling with his wife and child to his hacienda.
